The next WRED event will be held in the farming community of Snohomish County. The focus will be on agricultural recycling. Participants will see the vast growth of biofuel production, use of agricultural plastics and finally tour one of Washington's few anaerobic digesters.

Dale Reiner of Qualco Energy

The day will begin with a hands-on presentation of the Snohomish County biofuel production process at the Cathcart Facility. Deanna Carveth, Snohomish County and Atul Deshmane with Whole Energy will provide a demonstration of the biofuel process.

For lunch and the panel, the tour will leave for Qualco Energy, 20 minutes away. Linda Neunzig of Ninety Farms, and Steve George of NW Ag Plastics, Yakima will address agricultural plastics. There will be time for audience questions on biofuels and Ag Plastics.

Afternoon tours will focus on Dale Reiner's coordinated effort with the Tulalip Tribes, and the Salmon Advocacy Group on an Anaerobic Digester and one of the farms that feed manure to the digester, Jim and Andy Werkhoven's farm.

We'd enjoy having you attend the last WRED event of 2009!
